

Visiting grandmother

African Storybook
Catherine Groenewald

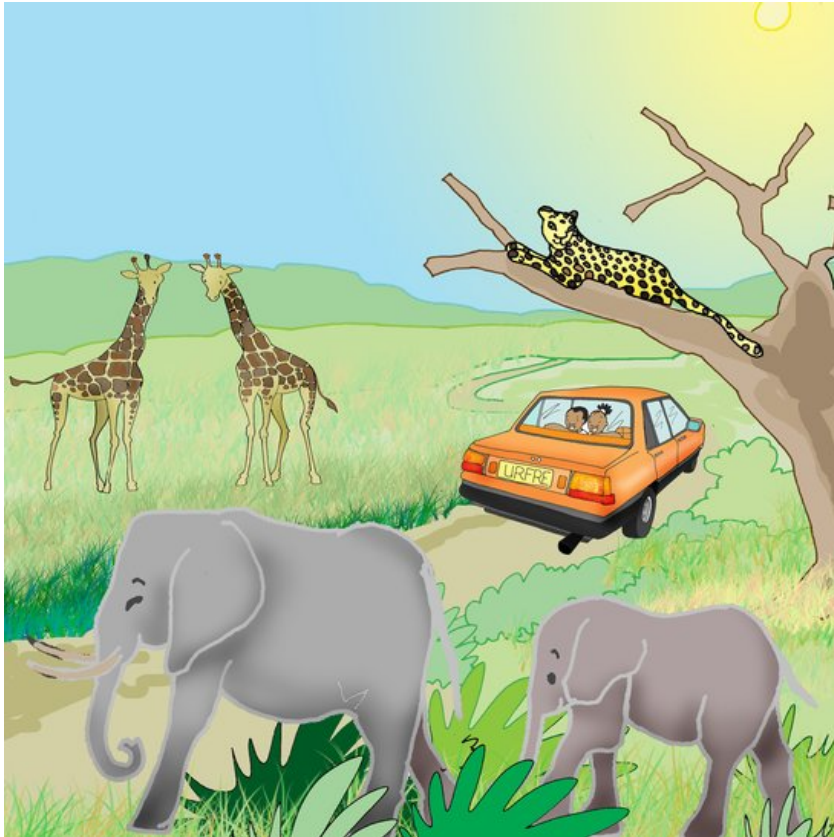

English

Odongo and Apiyo waited for the school holidays to come.

It was time for them to visit their grandmother.

They drove past
mountains, wild animals and farms.

After a while,
Odongo and Apiyo
fell asleep.

They found their grandmother resting under a tree.

Grandmother
danced and sang.

The children gave her presents.

Grandmother
blessed Odongo
and Apiyo in a traditional way.

Odongo and Apiyo
played with butterflies and birds.

They climbed trees.

They splashed in
the water of the lake.

They were tired.

They fell asleep
before finishing their dinner.

They helped
grandmother.

They collected eggs
and picked vegetables.

Grandmother
taught Odongo
and Apiyo how to cook different foods.

Odongo took grandmother's cows to graze.

They ate a neighbour's crops.

They went to their grandmother's stall at the market.

In the evening,
they helped
grandmother to count her money.

Soon, the holidays were over.

Grandmother packed food for their journey.

The children did not want to leave.

"Grandmother,
come with us."

Odongo and Apiyo
hugged grandmother.

"Goodbye,
grandmother,"
they said.

What is better, city
life or village life?
